On the last day of 10th Asia Pacific Red Cross and Red Crescent Regional Conference, the Red Cross and Red Crescent leaders from across Asia, the Pacific and the Middle East committed to ensuring women make up at least 50 percent of elected and appointed leadership positions within the next four years. This landmark target is in the "Manila Declaration", the outcome of the 4-day conference held in the Philippines during 11-14 November 2018, co-hosted by the Philippine Red Cross, and involved more than 300 humanitarian leaders from more than 60 countries. In addition to gender parity, the conference also set ambitious targets for increasing the number and diversity of volunteers, for improving and expanding support to vulnerable migrants and displaced people, and for the adoption of new and innovative approaches to disaster response, including forecast-based financing. ### Viet Nam Red Cross Society Conducts Preparedness for Effective Response Workshop

Twenty participants from the Viet Nam Red Cross Society (VNRC) and its Partner National Societies (12 female) gathered in Hanoi on 22 October to be oriented on the Preparedness for Effective Response (PER) process at VNRC Headquarters in Hanoi. This is the first among five Phases of the process including Orientation -> Assessment -> Prioritization and Analysis -> Work-Plan -> Action and Accountability. PER is a cyclical approach for a National Society to systematically assess, measure, and analyse the strengths and weaknesses of its response system in order to take remedial actions. The PER approach puts the NS in the driver's seat to construct a work-plan that when implemented should improve its overall response capacity. By mid of November, VNRC has conducted the first three phases of the PER process. Click here for more information.

Seasonal Forecast

December 2018 – February 2019

Forecast for Dec 2018 - Feb 2019, Forecast Issued Nov 2018

In November, conditions in the Pacific Ocean are nearing those of El Niño. If ocean temperatures continue to stay above the level set by scientists to define an El Niño event, an El Niño will be officially declared in the coming months. Regardless of whether an El Niño is officially declared, the seasonal forecast for the December - February season already points to some of the typical El Niño-like climate impacts. These include unusually dry conditions in southeast Asia, the Philippines, Indonesia and nearby countries, as well as unusually dry conditions in central America and northern parts of South America. Please note the areas on the map that are dark blue, and dark brown, as those represent the areas where we have the highest confidence in the forecast prediction for wetter or drier than usual conditions. In these areas, it may be useful to review contingency plans related to El Niño conditions, and begin regularly monitoring rainfall predictions. If you would like further guidance on how to interpret this forecast, please contact the IFRC Helpdesk at ifrc@iri.columbia.edu. The seasonal forecast below reflects the best available information of likely shifts in rainfall in the coming 3 months. This seasonal forecast should be closely monitored in conjunction with short-term, local forecasts from your national meteorological agency, which can provide more detailed information on what extreme events might happen during this season.
