As the novel coronavirus (2019-nCoV) continues spreading beyond China, the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC) is scaling up preparedness efforts to support people who are most vulnerable to the outbreak in Asia Pacific and beyond.

Dr Emanuele Capobianco IFRC’s Director for Health and Care said: “The threat of a coronavirus pandemic is real and cannot be underestimated. We are working with Red Cross Red Crescent Societies around the world to prepare and respond globally as the outbreak evolves. National Societies globally are trusted partners with long experience in preparing for and responding to diseases. With 13 million volunteers, we can play an important role in national and international response efforts against this novel coronavirus.”

IFRC has released its maximum amount of one million Swiss francs from its Disaster Relief Emergency Fund (DREF) for an initial surge of specialists to be deployed and prepositioned for National Societies in countries which are most vulnerable to the virus’ spread, with a current focus in Asia Pacific. In addition, IFRC is launching a global emergency appeal for 32 million Swiss francs to support community-based health activities, access to basic services, and the management of misinformation and stigma – all equally crucial to control the spread of the virus. Assistance will be tailored to each country depending on its epidemic preparedness and response, as well as the vulnerability of particular groups of people in the community.

Frontline response in the fight against 2019-Corona Virus (2019-nCoV)

The Viet Nam Red Cross (VNRC) is supporting the government’s efforts to control and prevent the spread of 2019-nCoV in Viet Nam. By the end of January 2020, Viet Nam had five confirmed cases (2 Chinese and 3 Vietnamese), as well as 97 suspected cases of which 32 were quarantined. The VNRC is a member of the National Steering Committee for Countering 2019-nCoV Response and Prevention.
